The King of Hearts combines the best qualities of the common and fringed bleeding heart - season long interest and heart shaped flowers. I use this beauty throughout my landscape and always cut a few flowers for indoor enjoyment. The soft bluish-green foliage displays sweet, rosy-pink heart-shaped flowers all summer. I find this impressive variety blooms for a long period of time in the garden and has a compact habit that stays neat and tidy all season. Plant in rich, well-drained soil in part shade to shade. This bleeding heart forms a dainty mound that is ideal for nestling into the front of the shady border garden, woodland garden, used rambling along paths and walkways, or in containers. Feed with a liquid or slow release fertilizer. This plant is hardy in Zone 3.
