This unique cranesbill geranium has mounds of handsome, spring-green and white marbled foliage with dainty, nodding flowers. As the foliage matures it develops a unique ring of red blotches that complements the somber appearance of the unusually dark, velvety-maroon flowers in early summer. This plant is a valuable addition to the landscape when tucked into the corners of the rock garden, woodland garden, or used as an edging plant or groundcover. Springtime thrives in average, well-drained soil in full sun to shade. Hardy in Zones 4-9.
