These daisy flowers last for a long time in the garden, all the way from June through August, with masses of huge, single, white blooms with yellow centers! I like to mix this simple flower with other perennials in the border garden, cottage garden, or in decorative containers. I find this shasta daisy naturalizes easily and is well suited to meadow and prairie gardens. The long lasting flower stems are superb in floral arrangements and also attract birds and butterflies to the garden. The clump forming growth habit displays dark green, shiny, toothed foliage that thrives in rich, well-drained soil in full sun to part shade. It is hardy in Zone 4.
