This new, golden barberry makes an effective hedge or colorful accent in the landscape. The ravishing tiny golden leaves retain their color all season with an orange cast that intensifies in autumn. Tiny clusters of yellow flowers hang below the branches in mid-spring. The dramatic golden foliage is non-burning with a compact, dwarf form that adds a fine and delicate texture to the landscape. This dense, multi-stemmed shrub has a mounded form perfect for containers, garden beds and borders, rock gardens, or as a groundcover. It is deer resistant and tolerates both drought and environmental salt conditions. Prune this barberry as needed in late winter or early spring before growth begins. Golden Nugget™ thrives in well-drained soil and full sun for best color and berry production. Apply a 2-3 inch layer of mulch or organic matter to conserve moisture and improve the soil. It is hardy in Zones 4-8.
