I recommend this ever changing shrub for dramatic foliage color and season long interest in the landscape. In spring, the striking foliage emerges bright rosy red with golden yellow centers, maturing to deep burgundy in summer, and finishing with clusters of contrasting white flowers! In autumn the scarlet leaves and bright red fruits appear, while in winter, the older, heavier stems display attractive, peeling bark. Plant this shrub in the back of the border, or to create an informal hedge or screen. Prune out older stems annually in late winter to promote vigorous new growth. Apply a 2-3 inch layer of mulch or organic matter to conserve moisture and improve the soil. Center Glow thrives in full sun in well-drained soil and is hardy in Zones 2-8.
