Viburnums are at the top of my list when I think of excellent landscape plants. Among the showiest, this variety has lovely horizontal, tiered branching with a magnificent display of large, flat flower clusters. The snow white flowers put on an elegant show in late April to May, and bloom sporadically until fall. The dense, compact habit is ideal in the shrub border, as a foundation planting, screen or hedge. In fall, the foliage turns an attractive reddish-purple with ornamental red fruits that attract birds to the landscape. Summer Snowflake thrives in full to part sun in average, well-drained soil and is hardy in Zones 5-8. Apply a 2-3" layer of mulch or organic material to conserve moisture and improve the soil.
