I always find room in my garden for this grass with the graceful fountains of intense, bright, blue-gray foliage! The neat, ornamental clumps combine well with other grasses and bold perennials, while the tan flower spikes create contrast in early summer. Coarse blue foliage remains attractive through fall and I find it even holds its color more reliably than Blue Fescue. This grass makes an attractive accent when planted in containers, borders, rock gardens, along the banks of water gardens, or as an evergreen groundcover. Blue Oat Grass is a moderate grower that provides both color and texture in the garden when planted either in large masses, or as a specimen plant. Grows in average, well-drained soil, and even tolerates our heavy clay soils in southern Wisconsin. Hardy in Zones 4-8.
